About Agent Love

In the beginning of 2007, a small group of young Vietnamese-American professionals based in Northern Virginia started a charitable project to provide relief for the victims of Agent Orange and the impoverished children in Vietnam. In April of 2007, Agent Love officially became a non-profit, tax-exempt organization operating according to the laws of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Realizing that the true needs of the disadvantaged children in Vietnam is a quality education which can lead to a brighter future, and that Agent Orange victims are already being helped by many international organizations, in around 2009 Agent Love decided to concentrate its relief efforts on helping the underprivileged children who cannot afford to go to school.

What We Provide

Agent Love provides the means for the impoverished children in Vietnam who show great potentials to realize their dreams of attending and finishing their high school and college education. We provide direct financial support and school supplies to these children. The money will be used for their education needs such as school tuition, transportation, food, and housing.

How Do We Help

Agent Love works in conjunction with volunteered social workers in Vietnam. Volunteers conduct field research in different provinces in Vietnam to identify qualified individuals and hand deliver funds directly to them. The social workers are not affiliated with the government of Vietnam or any other government entity.

Through the volunteered social workers, Agent Love is kept informed of the conditions and progress of the beneficiaries. Once the aid is delivered, the recipients will write thank-you notes to Agent Love and to individual sponsors in the United States.
